USS Ponce LPD-15

Ship's History

The Amphibious Transport Dock USS PONCE (LPD-15) is the first ship of the fleet to be named in honor of the city of Ponce, Puerto Rico. The city is in turn named in honor of the Spanish explorer, Ponce de Leon.

An Amphibious Transport Dock, PONCE is the newest of the most versatile class of amphibious assault ships. It combines the troop carrying capability of the LPA, the floodable well deck and landing craft capability of the LSD and the helicopter operating deck of the LPH. When loaded, PONCE carries a balanced unit of 923 Marines, their combat vehicles and their combat cargo, thus maintaining the combat integrity of assault forces during extended deployments. Using a ballast system much like that on a submarine, the floodable well deck allows beach assault by amphibious landing craft launched from PONCE'S stern. Tactical flexibility is reflected in her ability to employ the concept of "vertical envelopment." Ship's armament consists of four twin 3-inch 50 caliber rapid fire, dual purpose gun mounts. USS PONCE was constructed by Lockheed Shipbuilding and Construction Company, Seattle, Washington. Her keel was laid on 31 October 1966, and she was launched on 20 May 1970. Following delivery to the Navy on 25 June 1971, PONCE was commissioned on 10 July at Puget Sound Naval Shipyard, Bremerton, Washington. Principal speaker was the Honorable Jorge Luis CORDOVA, Resident Commissioner (Congressman-at-large) from the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico. An honored guest was Juan H. CINTRON, Mayor of Ponce, Puerto Rico.

In late August, PONCE commenced her maiden voyage to her homeport, Norfolk, Virginia. Ports of call on the West Coast included San Francisco and San Diego, California, and Mazatlan and Acapulco, Mexico. Upon departure from Mexico, three MSO's of the Spanish Navy were refueled by PONCE enroute to the Panama Canal.

Transiting the Panama Canal in one day, PONCE reached her homewaters of the Atlantic Fleet on September 15. Port calls at Ponce and San Juan, Puerto Rico provided a welcome to be long remembered. This first visit to Ponce, Puerto Rico witnessed more than 10,000 visitors aboard during a four day period.

Shakedown training in October and November followed by Amphibious Operational Training in January 72 sharpened the basic shipboard skills of PONCE'S crew and readied her to an active role in the Atlantic Fleet.

In February 1972 following a trip up the Mississippi River to New Orleans, La., PONCE provided hotel accommodations for Navy and other military units participating in the Mardi Gras festivities.

Following final contractor trials in December 1971, PONCE spent six weeks in Philadelphia Naval Shipyard for her Post Shakedown Availability in March and April. Upon completion of PSA in mid-April PONCE returned to Norfolk to commence preparations for her first operational deployment to the Caribbean.

In June 1972 PONCE became a member of Amphibious Squadron Six and deployed to the Caribbean for two six week periods. An additional Squadron shift placed PONCE in Squadron Two on 1 November 1972 and preparations for a six month Mediterranean deployment were begun.

On 5 January, with units of first Battalion Sixth Marines embarked, PONCE sailed from Morehead City for duty with the Sixth Fleet.

CAPT GEORGE W. FARRIS, USN

10 July 1971 - 9 May 1973

Captain George W. Farris, a native of San Jose, California, enlisted in the U.S. Navy in 1942 and served several years prior to being sent to the NROTC unit at the University of South Carolina where he was subsequently commissioned in 1946. He then had successive tours of duty in USS FRANK KNOX (DDR-742), USS EPCER 857 and USS THEODORE E. CHANDLER (DD-717) extending through July of 1949. Following a year in the inactive reserve, he was recalled to active duty incident to the outbreak of the Korean War and in September 1950, participated in re-commissioning USS WALKE (DD-723) as Navigator and later as Operations Officer. He was serving in USS WALKE when she was severely damaged by enemy action in June 1951 off Wonsan, Korea, with heavy loss of life. From this followed duty in the Far East as Commanding Officer, USS SAUSALITO (PF-4). Later came shore duty at NAS, San Diego. This was followed by a tour as Administrative Assistant at Headquarters, United Nations Command Far East Command in Tokyo. In August 1963 he attended the Armed Forces Staff College in Norfolk, Virginia and later, following completion of the Attache course at the Defense Intelligence School, served as Assistant Naval Attache and Naval Attache for Air in Madrid, Spain. He was ordered to command of USS O'BRIEN (DD-725) in August 1966. During this tour, USS O'BRIEN twice deployed to the Tonkin Gulf and was slightly damaged on an Operation Sea Dragon coastal surveillance mission, before the North Vietnamese shore batteries were silenced by counter-battery fire and air strikes. His next duty assignment was as Head of the Naval Estimates Branch in the office of Assistant Chief of Naval Operations (Intelligence) in Washington, D.C. before being ordered to place USS PONCE (LPD-15) in commission and assume command. He has thrice been awarded the Bronze Star Medal (with Combat "V") for combat actions both in the Korean and Vietnamese conflicts.

I must go down to the sea again
To the lonely sea and the sky,
And all I ask is a tall ship
And a star to steer her by,
And the wheel's creak, and the wind's song,
And the white sails shaking;
And a gray mist on the sea's face,
And a gray dawn breaking.
